

PRESS RELEASE

For immediate release 26 March, 2009

The Angels signed up for the 2009 Deniliquin Ute Muster

Rising from humble beginnings as a pub rock band, The Angels went on to forge an extraordinary career spanning more than three decades and are established as one of the quintessential Aussie rock outfits.

Since releasing their now legendary debut single 'Am I Ever Gonna See Your Face Again' in May 1976, the band has gone on to release a vast catalogue of recorded music and performing thousands of gigs.

Performing on the main stage along with headline act Powderfinger - on Saturday 3rd October, the crowds will have a rare opportunity to witness undoubtedly two of Australia's most talented and successful rock bands.

"We hear Deni is a great gig and that the crowds are awesome. It will be a great buzz for us to perform to so many of our fans in true Aussie spirit," said The Angels Doc Neeson.

John Harvie, Festival Director welcomes The Angels to the 2009 Deni Ute Muster concert lineup.

"We believe we have the perfect Australian Country and Rock music cocktail ever in our history.

Our team has worked hard to cater for all music palettes of all ages.

We are predicting a sell out crowd this year," he said.

Dynamic Beccy Cole, talented Travis Collins and up and coming artist Sinead Burgess will also be performing on the main stage Saturday night.

The Festival caters for all ages ranging from children, families, adults through to retirees with camping facilities available to suit everyone's preference.

Set on the flattest open plains on earth the site includes a huge Family camping area that caters for sedans, caravans, camper trailers and mobile homes so if you don't have a ute – don't despair, everyone can still be part of this national iconic event.
